

Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act Update

Thomson-Shore has been diligently working toward compliance with the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act of 2008, including keeping up-to-date with the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) clarifying communications. As of February 1, 2009 the CPSC granted a one year stay of testing and certification requirements for certain products.

We want our customers to know that we are committed not only to being good stewards of the environment, but also manufacturing safe products for the enjoyment of readers of all ages. We will continue to monitor the CPSIA and provide updates to our customers as appropriate.
